

Peter Langman, Ph.D.

Preventing School Shootings

Dr. Peter Langman, author of Why Kids Kill: Inside the Minds of School Shooters, is a sought-after expert who provides training in identifying and assessing potential school shooters and preventing rampage attacks. His trainings are highly valuable for guidance counselors, school psychologists, teachers, security staff, administrators, and other education professionals.

A psychologist who has helped children and adolescents for twenty-five years, Dr. Langman combines professional experience with evaluating at-risk youth with his extensive research on shooters at Columbine, Virginia Tech, and other schools. Dr. Langman has earned international recognition for his powerful analysis in Why Kids Kill: Inside the Minds of School Shooters, which was named a 2009 Outstanding Academic Title by Choice Reviews, which described the book as “a vital, phenomenal, extremely valuable work.” His research has been cited in Congressional hearings on Capitol Hill and featured in articles carried by The New York Times, The Washington Post, The Los Angeles Times, Forbes, USA Today, Education Week, Junior Scholastic, MSNBC, Yahoo News, and thousands of other news outlets. Dr. Langman has been interviewed over 100 times by journalists in the United States, Canada, Europe, Australia, and the Middle East, and he has appeared on CBS, CNN, Fox, and the BBC. His book has been translated into German, Dutch, and Finnish.

“He was amazing. The time flew and I learned so much about the minds of school shooters.”

“I was impressed by his knowledge [and] ability to answer all questions and the fact that he used nothing but a piece of paper as a guide blew my mind.”

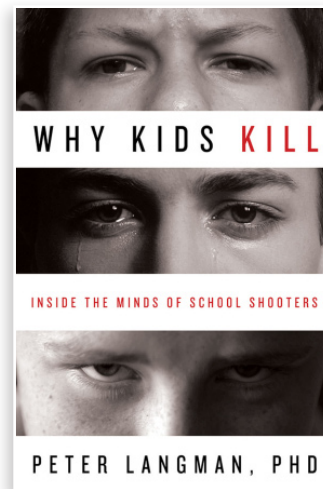

“Excellent presenter! Very informative, interesting and surprising all at the same time! I would love to invite him to my school district for a presentation!”
